

Exceptional Service Award

February 20, 2011

Tonight I want to recognize a member of the club who quietly gave of herself unselfishly by awarding her the Exceptional Service Award. The Treasurer is the backbone of this non-profit corporation and has ultimate financial accountability. Debi Sprouse, as a new member, made the complex job of being Treasurer, during a period of growth for the club, look effortless.

While performing the important and powerful role of Treasurer, which represents the financial existence of the organization, Debi quietly exhibited servant-leadership. She devoted herself to her role and sacrificed countless hours managing and documenting the club's finances, forfeited some of her freedom to make a more financially sound organization for you, and often relinquished herself from socializing and dancing to do what was in the club's best interest.

Please take a moment to personally thank Debi for her extra effort on behalf of the Atlanta Swing Dancers Club. The Club is presenting Debi with the award as appreciation for her extraordinary effort and self-sacrifice. As part of the new administration we have been very happy to be imparted with Debi's experiential knowledge and lessons learned. We hope we will be able to apply all of this towards the advancement and modernization of the club for your benefit and the benefit of the current Board of Directors.

I also ask each of you to take the time to get to know the members of the Board of Directors. They are the people who make it possible for us to enjoy the dances each week, the special events, and the positive advancement of our dance community, and club. When you dance please show everyone how happy you are that you have such a wonderful institution to enjoy.

Sincerely,

Chris Lynberg
